Claude Premium users are at near-saturation (96% WAU, 96% segments, 94% automations). The biggest growth opportunity is Claude Standard (81% WAU but only 64% segments) and the 3,065 free-tier users across both channels.

Top Industries Among Connector Users

Industry	ChatGPT	Claude
Non-profit	81	65
Real estate	63	57
Health & fitness	34	53
Education & training	32	43
Retail	38	34
E-commerce	36	29
Software & web app	—	44
Consulting	23	42
Travel & transportation	31	39

Non-profit is the top industry on both channels. Claude skews more toward software, consulting, and health — knowledge-worker segments. ~70% of users have no industry set.

Multi-Product Stacking Effect

Products Used	Users	WAU %	Incremental vs 0 Products
0 products	1,589	23.0%	—
1 product	945	46.0%	+23.0 pts
2 products	1,350	65.3%	+42.3 pts
3 products	1,383	81.6%	+58.6 pts
4 products	240	85.4%	+62.4 pts

Each additional product doubles then compounds WAU: 23% → 46% → 65% → 82% → 85%. Users with 3+ products (segments + automations + email sends) are 3.5x more likely to be weekly active than those with none.

Strategic Implication

> The ChatGPT and Claude connectors have built Mailchimp's most engaged user base. The Marketing Analyzer is the accelerant that compounds these strengths and closes the remaining gaps.

Embedding the Marketing Analyzer in the connector experience would: (1) close the email and segment gap with a demonstrated 2-3x lift, (2) deepen retention by driving segment-creation behavior that reduces disconnect rates by 40%, and (3) accelerate upgrades — segmenters upgrade Standard to Premium at 3.7x, and free users with analyzer access convert at 99% vs 12% without.

The multi-product stacking data reinforces this: each product a connector user adopts adds ~20 pts of WAU. The Marketing Analyzer is the fastest path to adding the next product (segmentation) for the 1,589 users currently at zero products.

Claude is the stronger channel on every forward-looking metric. Prioritize embedding the Marketing Analyzer in Claude first.
